

About Dharma Publishing

Dharma Mudranalaya, doing business as Dharma Publishing and Dharma Press, was founded by Tarthang Tulku to protect the Tibetan heritage. It began operations in 1963 in Varanasi, India, and continues since 1971 in California, and now based at our own home at Ratna Ling, California, about three hours north of San Francisco.

Since its beginning, Dharma Publishing has been the biggest publisher of Tibetan Buddhist texts in the world, primarily because of its phenomenally large production of Tibetan texts for the Tibetan communities in exile. In addition we have over 125 titles in the English language, plus thirty-three books for children, called Jatakas.

All books and art have been printed by Dharma Press, also located at Ratna Ling.

We are a non-profit, all-volunteer organization dedicated to preserving the culture of Tibetan Buddhism while contributing to the Western understanding of mind, well-being and human potential. All gross income is wholly dedicated towards the preservation of the Tibetan heritage, mainly in the purchase of printing paper.

Learn more how you can get involved: contact@dharmapublishing.com

Our head office is located in Cazadero, California, at the Ratna Ling Retreat Center, about three hours north of San Francisco.

Our sales office is located at 2210 Harold Way, Berkeley.

There are satellite offices in Durham, North Carolina; Amsterdam, The Netherlands; Cologne, Germany; Sao Paulo and Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, and Buenos Aires, Argentina.